Project Summary

Glen View Elementary Lunch Bunch 2021-2022

Project Narrative:

Our school has a large number of students who are struggling with social interactions during first and lunch recesses. The pandemic has further created challenges that are greatly impacting our student's social and emotional health. In particular, communication and social problem-solving have greatly been impacted by the lack of social practice, stress, over-exposure to social-media, and isolation children across the world have experienced. Many of my students have returned lacking the age appropriate communication practice needed to be successful in a peer group. This has created difficulties during unstructured times when children socialize without the close guidance of their teachers.

Currently, students are allowed a variety of physical outdoor activities during their free time; however, for students who have difficulties participating in team activities, forming friendships, and/or socializing with peers, the recess hours have been challenging. At this time 80% of our office discipline referrals are occurring during first and lunch recesses, which is further necessitating intervention during these times. Our discipline referrals have been decreasing since January; so we believe whatever large scale tier one interventions we can implement are helping with behavioral challenges.

We have implemented Lunch Bunch weekly every Wednesday from 11:00 AM to 1:00 PM. This year we ordered larger games that would be easier to allow for social distancing, that could create a tool allowing multiple students to learn from a single activity (the larger game sizes allowed for multiple students to model social skills and for others to observe). Also, I did not anticipate this, but our games were used for several school-wide activities in which many times families/guardians were also involved. Lastly, the larger games were more attractive to our older students.

The Lunch Bunch will continue in the upcoming academic years, due to the program's success this year and during previous years. In the upcoming academic year we will offer this program twice weekly to increase the social emotional learning our students have access to. Originally, Escondido Education Foundation had funded this project in 2017. The games we purchased were table games and small crafts. The students learned a lot from this, but the larger toys allow for more learning and reach a larger group of students.

I also observed that there are changes that need to occur, many of our obstacles were due to extenuating circumstances (Covid-19 caused delays to shipping and staffing and we could not start until March), but these obstacles also taught me for the years to come. Lunch Bunch was an exceptional tool for helping our students learn much needed social/emotional skills, and we will continue to provide this program in the upcoming years.

Target Behaviors:

We were able to target several essential social skills during our lunch bunch times. The first and most important skill that was targeted was friendship forming. I would often pair students up and model how to engage in positive introductions. Most of the pairs were from differing classes and some were different ages. I would then model several ways that they could play together. I felt pairing from different classes, ages, and even abilities created an opportunity to practice and enhance empathic thinking. We explored how by just introducing oneself to another person creates opportunities for growth, friendship, and learning. It was incredible to see how well children interacted when taken out of the larger recess area. Some of the younger students would request to play with the older students they had met during Lunch Bunch.

Another skill we worked on was kindness. Students would assist me with creating posters for various school events. Many created pictures together and had to work on important collaboration skills to create a cohesive piece of art. I would see students problem-solving to decide on the colors they would use, what they would put on the drawing, and where each student would stand in order to work together. Lastly, I would see how proud they were of one another at the termination of their art project. Many drawings were made for graduation, orientation night, teacher appreciation day, friends, and family.

As Lunch Bunch was only offered to 3 students from each class weekly, students were often able to meet new people. This was an incredible opportunity for students to practice multiple social skills. Not only were they needing to think about how they could play with new people, they had to use empathy, and be a flexible thinker to play in a way they weren't used to.

Once I observed a student with Autism come up and start drawing on another student's piece of artwork. The other student approached me and told me what happened. We came together, and with perspective taking and flexibility, the student whose drawing was marked up, showed warmth and understanding to the student with Autism who just wanted to join in, but did not know how to do so. The student with Autism was able to apologize and learn how to appropriately ask how to join an activity as well as apologize.

Other Impacts:

Also, during fifth grade promotion, open house, and family nights our big games were utilized. A large number of parents/guardians were interacting while playing games. This brought our community together, and gave parents/guardians a playful way to interact with their children and other families. During promotion, the games have allowed students and staff to interact in playful ways. While interacting with adults during these events, students learned good sportsmanship, empathy, collaboration, and healthy ways of interacting with others.

Conclusion:

Glen View Elementary School really appreciates the Escondido Education Foundation funding our project and supporting our student and community well-being. The items we bought with our grant monies have fostered school and community togetherness. This project will continue for years to come. There are areas for growth, such as expanding the number of days the program is offered, staffing and purchasing was a challenge due to Covid-19, and some minor housekeeping issues. However, the social and emotional needs of children and the growth they make due to these programs necessitates the continuance of social programs like Lunch Bunch.

Data

Date	Topics	Grades	Notes
March 2nd	Sharing - K - students were not getting along and we worked on a sharing activity, friendship - giving friends compliments, taking turns, conflict management - what to do if the game you want is unavailable and what to do if you have something a peer wants to play with	K-5 - 40 kids came - 3 on behavioral plans	The students enjoyed using the art supplies the most - it gave them a chance to learn to share the easels and problem-solve, how to share supplies with others
March 9th	Name-calling - K - students have been name calling each other - they came to lunch bunch and engaged in a restorative activity - worked on giving one another compliments and talked about what makes a good friend, Fifth graders helped out some fourth graders - they taught the students how to play the games (worked on positive communication and collaboration), Second graders made posters for their friends and teachers with kind words.	K-5 - 48 kids - 3 on behavioral plans	Bring out more balls for the kids to play with - a few could work on sportsmanship
March 16th	Working on playing with new people - especially 2nd grade, how to introduce yourself and ask to play with someone, how to ask someone to play with you	K-5 - 52 kids - 3 on behavioral plans	Maybe turn the jenga set into a social skills game with questions you can ask peers to enhance friendships
March 23rd	Working on having good friendships - many kiddos came and just wanted to make art work for their friends and teachers. We worked on making pictures that would make people feel good - kind words, etc. The general education 5th graders were mixing with the SPED students 4th and 5th and playing together - usually these students don't mix - but they played a jump rope game together	K-5 - 43 kids - 3 on behavioral plans	A lot of kiddos are losing their lunch bunch lanyards - I need to come up with a better lanyard to show the kiddo can come to lunch bunch - someone suggested passes that are like our golden tickets
April 6th	Art work and working on how to be kind with the space - picking up materials after using, sharing with other, taking care of games	K-5 50 kids - 3 on behavioral plans	This went really well - we had more kids than usual - but everyone picked up their things and helped one another
April 20th	This was a smaller group today after spring break, we worked on sharing, conflict resolution - a student with Autism started to draw on a student's piece of artwork - the student had been working hard on the artwork, but was flexible and the two students talked it out - there was an apology, and the other student found a way to incorporate the new artwork into his original work	32 kids 3 on behavioral plans	Today was a great day to review conflict management

April 26th	Lunch Bunch games were used for PTA Family Game Night at Open House	Several Families - 100 plus people	This went really well - several families and children were playing together and many families state they want more game nights!
April 27th	We worked on sharing and being kind to friends - how to follow the rules of the game and ask for help when needed	42 kids K-5 3 on behavioral plans	The younger students asked for help many times to learn how to play checkers - checkers was a popular game today - they were good about listening and helping one another out to learn how to play the game. A fifth grade student made me a lunch bunch poster for my cart!
May 4-May 11	Canceled these lunch bunches -due to an emergency situation that came up on campus
May 18th	Worked on sharing and waiting our turns	60 kids - 2kids on behavioral plans	Today was a bit messy - after two weeks off several kiddos came without passes - so we worked on the rules of who could be at lunch bunch and reviewed the rules of the games.
May 25th	Sharing and taking turns - today was back to normal and the kids really worked on sharing and taking turns when playing the jumbo Jenga - many kids wanted to play this game - so we needed to practice turn taking	48 kids - 2 kids on behavioral plans	We were back to normal today - sharing, taking turns
June 1st	Talked about saying goodbye to friends - the kids helped make posters for fifth graders	51 kids - 3 on behavioral plans	connecting with friends, asking to play, meeting new people - kids were helping one another out and doing well at picking up their items
June 8th	Closing up talked about saying good bye to friends and starting new activities	47 kids - 1 kid on behavioral plan
June 7th to June 14th	Games being used for the different grades as a way of enjoying the last days of school

6/2/2022 14:01:50	ccriscenti@eusd.org		5 Yes	Strongly Agree	It took some of the kiddos off the playground to enjoy great activities and games. I believe we need more programs like this for our students.	Maybe two days a week?
6/2/2022 15:22:59	arojas@eusd.org		3 Yes	Agree		It's a great incentive for students.
6/2/2022 16:25:25	jmerry@eusd.org		5 Yes	Strongly Agree	they seemed to enjoy it and always were hoping to get chosen!
6/2/2022 19:15:56	awickham@eusd.org		1 Yes	Strongly Agree	Happier, motivated, excited	More large art easels would be ideal.
6/3/2022 8:40:03	jlopez@eusd.org		5 Yes	Strongly Agree	Less misbehavior incidents in the classroom.	If we get an intern this coming up year, have her/him run lunch bunch.
6/3/2022 8:43:39	bbasa@eusd.org		2 Yes	Strongly Agree	Yes, kids became friends after being there.	Keep it going!
6/3/2022 8:46:23	ntapia@eusd.org		3 Yes	Strongly Agree	Students were excited to attend and it helped some of my kids connect with school and school personnel.	I'd recommend making a lunch bunch ticket pad like we have for small golden tickets. The laminated ones were cute but were lost or damaged after the first day. I ended up having to print my own on paper.
